Seven of these ten were present at the meeting, and officers were elected: George Comden, president, and Bill Miller, secretary-treasurer. Dear Editor:

I have heard a number of students comment favorably on the idea of having a "N.M.C." float in the Cherry Festival Parade this summer.

"I think it's a capital idea," said Joe Mariage, "and I would be willing to donate some time working on the project."

"I think it's a wonderful idea," commented Bette Fahler.

"I think it would be a good thing. Everyone else has a float in the parade. It would be good publicity," stated Kathy Greilick.

I was talking to Mr. Biederman, President of the Education Fund, Inc., in relation to a College float. He liked the idea.

At a meeting of the College Council, this idea was proposed, but no action has been taken on it to date.

Thousands of people come to Traverse City for the National Cherry Festival every year. They come from the outlying area, from all over Michigan, and from other states. What an appropriate time this would be to publicize and promote Northwestern Michigan College. Interest from prospective students could be drawn to the College. It would show of "our" College that we are alive and doing things--that we are on the ball, so to speak. Are we going to take advantage of this opportunity?

Most of the other schools in the Traverse City area sponsor floats. Bands from all over Michigan participate in the annual event. It affords the students an opportunity to put their talents together and bring forth something desirable. They have fun doing it. Are we going to let the High Schools and Grade Schools out do us?

What would this project cost? Mr. Lutz, Secretary of the National Cherry Festival said, "Floats can be made up for as little as $25.00. With students willing to do the work of creating and designing their float, a nice one could be produced for $50.00."

The parade will be Friday, July 10th. Floats take two to three weeks to make up, working a few hours each day. With all

Congratulations Councilmen

The newly elected officials have been initiated to their posts. The weight of responsibility evidently has been met with determination, and the challenge has overpowered no one. The new CC men in Don Shea, Tom Henretty, Wayne Laughton, Janet Earl, Marge Mattingly and Earnest Gaunt have responded well to their legislative duties. So far their actions have been commendable and warrant the support of their constituents.

The seed of consistent devotion to duty is obviously being sown. As long as it continues to grow the purpose of college government will be achieved.

With the good beginning they have made, a healthy growth seems inevitable.

Should We Tolerate Destruction of NMC'S Reputation and Property?

Unthinking, destructive actions of a few vagrants can burn the social calendar for every person in College.

The recent destruction of College and business property could cause this action. If it's a choice between good public relations and social life the latter must go.

Something should be done with persons who black-eye the whole college body.

Persons whose integrity is damaged by thoughtless actions should judge the vagrants punishment.

CAMPUS COMMENTS

By

Bette Suman and Barb Boomer

Dear Barb:

Well, it's really been a long time since we sat down and had a good gab-fest, hasn't it? I guess it's because this term has been so busy and we haven't had much time to gossip. Who am I kidding, huh?

Say, did you see Jay Zee at the State last week? Seems we have a stage personality in our midst.---the celebrated or should I say celebrating Mr. Peter Creech. Poor Pete was really transported, especially when he thought he saw Marilyn Monroe in the topmost branches of a palm tree. If you ever wanted to see a real remoo in action, you should have caught Pete's performance. I guess there is something to this hypnotism after all, eh, Pete?

Wasn't the dance last Friday wonderful? The decorations were really great, thanks to Elsie Halladay, Dianne Akers, Chuck Mellberg, Lloyd Maynard and some of the other supporters. And the punch and cookies were delicious. Say, Tom really looked like the typical host behind the refreshment bar, didn't he?

Are you planning on going to the Marshmallow and Weiner roast this Friday? It really sounds like it will be terrific, especially with the dance afterwards. The council has really planned some great activities this term, with an All-College Picnic coming up the 21st, another dance the 29th and the graduation dance the 12th. I really hope everyone will appreciate their efforts and make a good showing.

Miss Sherman's 12:00 Social Science class just can't seem to get it into their heads that if a tree had no other nourishment than what a person could supply it with, you could run up and down that tree all day with an 8 gallon container of water and still not be able to give that water enough tree!! Seems Gordie La Guire wasn't exactly stumped, however, when he was asked what a cradle was. Not that kind of cradle Gordie!

Mr. Wunsch's Prose class has just discovered a good cure for insomnia, that is, their latest reading assignment, Lord Jim. Guess the only way they keep awake is by soaking up all the fresh clean air that comes in the open windows.

Well, I see old "Squirt-a-long" Comden is riding the trails again with his trusty old six-shooter water pistol. If we're ever accused of being all wet, I guess we can owe it to "Squirt."

Have to run to my 12:00 class, now. Be good, and don't forget to write.

-- Bette

Hi Bette:

Yes, this beautiful spring weather hardly promotes letter writing, but it sure brings out the new spring fashinns, doesn't it? The bare-arm look seems to take top honors in dresses and blouses again this year. And, denim is the popular material for new skirts and play out-fits. Did you notice Elsie's pretty green wrap-around and Marilyn Clinton's light blue middy and skirt combination?

Ruth Morris and Betty Lou Larson sure have the right idea when they don their sleeveless dresses and then take along the matching sweaters, "just in case."

For males, the fashion right now seems to be light, crinkled-crepe shirts and brightly colored squirt guns--!

I guess spring not only brings out new clothes but new cars, too. Did you see Mr. Gaunt's beautiful, tutone blue and grey Plymouth? We'll certainly have to have a ride in that!

Say, what do you think of the newly-formed Varsity Club. Pretty neat, huh? I guess congratulations are in order to the three elected officers, George Comden, President; Jack Tilly, Vice-President; and Bill Miller, Secretary-Treasurer.

Certain fellows have even tried using hydrogen-peroxide in their squirt guns. Well, it'll all come out in the wash, as they say. Just hope that Tom Henretty and Rog Vigland don't suddenly become bleached blondes.

Yes, I sure am going to the Marshmallow roast Friday. I'll see you there, o.k.?

Well, with mid-term exams all day today, I can't sit and talk to you, as much as I enjoy it. See you next week, Bette.

Big news! Good old "Coon" and I have just been given a sneak preview to the recording of the new heavy-footed, light opera. The recording is titled, "Excerpts from Comden," and is named directly from the opera. As I thought you might be interested, here is a light run-down on it, just as it appeared to me.

The scene opens with the hero, walking naturally (sound effect: a herd of buffalo stampeding over a large sheet of boiler-plate) to the center of stage. Here he sings the opening area of the opera, which tells of his heartbreak, due to the theft of his trusty old squirt-gun.

After he has wailed and moaned for ten minutes, a group of gun (squirt) toting comrades enter and take up the mournful chant. They are a motly looking bunch, dressed in various types of college apparel. Tears are soon falling from all on stage, and the deluge has flooded even the footlights. Now, they all, expecting the hero, refill their guns with the fallen tears, and proceed to shower each other with their watery symbol of grief.

The scene is now a sodden mass of dripping humanity, into which dashes the villain. He is carryin' the hero's lost weapon; he is pursued by a school of giggling salt-water nymphs bearing perfume loaded fire-extinguishers, which are squirted, indiscriminately, around the entire area. The villian slips on a puddle of tears, and the lost gun bounces to the feet of the hero, who scoops it up and squirts him directly in the eye.

The curtain falls with a splash as the entire croup melts into the stage flooring. *****

Here's a little question I would like to have answered. Why does a stamp, placed upsidedown on a letter, signify a Kiss?
