Election Begins Oct. 30

College Council Candidates Air Positions

The annual fall elections for freshman College Council candidates begins into its last phase this week before the actual voting ends Tuesday at noon. Thirty-five tickets have been filed for the candidates, and two-thirds of them are freshmen. Those four will be closing out their campaigning at the end of this week. When asked about this year's election, both Larry Davis, freshman chairman, and George Lawrence, president, expressed enthusiasm for the election. Council president Bill Hansen expressed disappointment at the student participation in the elections. He said in particular that he would like to see more women on the Council, and at the present time, there is only one woman holding office (Council treasurer Mary Becker) and none running for election.

It was felt that one of the biggest problems causing the student apathy was the fact that students are simply unaware of what the College Council does, most students learning the information directly from high school and being accustomed to the relatively passive high school student government. At the college level, however, the student government has crucial responsibilities. The freshman Council is responsible for running the whole campus (operating with an annual budget of approximately $6,000) as well as having a voice at all levels of college administration.

Ron Harrie

People of NMC: this is a small school, and there isn't much to do. But I want you to know that if you're here, I'll make it worth your while. I'm very much concerned with your needs. I'm here to make sure you get an education. I'm here to make sure you have fun. I'm here to make sure you stay here. I'm here to make sure you get by in the school you work, then there's something wrong. What's wrong? We pay $8.00 per credit for general fees, 35 per cent of that goes to the College Council, and the rest goes to the affiliated clubs. I want to make sure the buck is going where it should. The buck or they are doing with our money?

I'm running for College Council and my only reason is to get some answers and to get them to you. Please vote for Ron Harrie-most of all show services and vote.

Penny Wernick

C.A.B. Brings Concerts

The Cultural Activities Board plans all seasons featuring a performance of "The English Suit," Sunday, October 21, in the Loras Becktel Auditorium. The concert was five of George in NMC's identification card. Other scheduled plans for this year include a performance by the Interlochen Jazz Quintet on November 4. The purpose of C.A.B. is to bring a variety of the students that other organizations within the college don't need to know the students' range cultural experience. The board is for the benefit of students who want to work on programs, planning, and especially to make a show. Students may contact either Karen Wallace, student chairman of C.A.B.; or John Lewis, faculty advisor of C.A.B. If there is anything you are interested in participating.

George Lawrence

My name is George Lawrence and I'm in the right, medical field of mine. I come from Toronto, Canada and speaking as a foreign student I ask that you cast your vote in my favor for the College Council. I want to keep some clubs and organizations in the college, and I believe that you should take place around the college. I want to see happen forms (male) of spastic and deformed reflections. By myself, I am helpless, but with your support on Oct 31, and I can be the one. Thank you.
If you will remember, in the last issue I made a few comments (in a muddled way) on the parking problem on the NWC campus. This leads me to the question of why there is a parking problem and the answer is that there are a great number of students and that answer would seem to be that everybody is going to college. Being naturally curious, I'm of course going to ask why, why is everybody going to college and the reply is that, well, just because everybody goes to college. Which leads me to where I really want to go, and that is why is going to college?

Last year there were two girls that I know, both of them freshmen. Both of them missed around six, didn't put too much attention to their grades, and neither of them are back this year. The cost for the year for them probably averaged around $900.00. So why did they do it? Spent all that money and then have, with a grade point average that they have to make up if they ever come back. What did they gain? (Well, they are both engaged now to guys that they met here but that's irrelevant to this discussion.)

Even more to the point, I did the same thing (see, I really do know what I'm talking about). My first year in college was four years ago. After that first year I dropped out, at the time not really intending to come back. My GPA still shows it. Why did I do it?

The problem is quite widespread. I talked last issue about the parking problem. Next term the problem will probably not exist, or at least not as much, and next spring we'll have empty rooms in the dorms.

The problem exists at other schools also. At MSU there are students considering a class action suit because of the poor living conditions caused by overcrowded dorms. In six months they'll be living comfortably. In twelve months it'll be worse.

So why do you go to college -- especially if you're a freshman? Why is it that the graduating class at least four year schools is only a fraction of the class that started four years before?

Are you here to get an education? Naivous, very naivous. Education in what? If there is fifty per cent of the freshman class at NWC that knows what they are going to do with their lives or will end up doing what they think they are going to do, I'd be surprised. I know I didn't go into college and, now, four years later I still don't know what I want to do, although I do know generally (and I still don't look on college as much as an education as a means to an end). As far as being a valuable experience, I imagine I'll get more out of putting out this newspaper than I did most of my classes.

Are you here to gain the experience of living away from home? That's not too good. You can do the same thing by simply getting an apartment and a job. That way you'd be making money rather than spending it.

Or do you go because you're here? Could it be that (as it was once) you're here because you just believed that after high school you go to college. Because you were used to reading articles or seeing commercials on TV that say that's what you're going to get any kind of decent job you had to have a college education. Don't believe it.

Our society is college oriented. The big push is to go to college immediately after high school. How many times have you heard parents proclaim, 'Oh, my son is a freshman at U. of M.'? For too many students it's a waste of time, money, and effort. Sometimes a tragic waste. The pressure on a college student can be pretty high, especially at the upper class and graduate level. The suicide rate among college students is among the highest in the country.

What it comes down to is do you know why you're here? If you do, great. If you don't, think about it. And think about it and you still don't know, think about the alternatives. Leaving school, travelling, working for a couple of years. Doing whatever you feel like doing. Then, if you feel that a college degree has a place in your life, you can always come back. Dropping out may have a stigma put on it by society, and it may appear your plans a little, but in the long run it might be one of the worst things you could do.
Results of Student Survey

There should be higher tuition fees levied for all out-of-state students. This is the case in most colleges. Additionally, expensive programs should require participating students to incur more of the costs. A third problem with the system is in quelleve costs to those students not taking the courses.

The Committee has concluded that non-traditional programs (the fourth area) such as cooperative education, individualized major, etc., should be implemented at MSU. To date, only the College of Education has a program in place in qualeque costs to those students not taking the courses. The Committee recommends the removal of existing bars preventing student learning from the non-traditional programs imposed by the Board of Education, boards, and the state legislature.

It is the recommendation of the Committee that a new system of categorizing students should have the advantage of knowledge and guidance of knowledgeable academic counseling, directing all phases of his or her education. The high school level would be most affected because of this recommendation, so this is the area that is most concerned.

There is some question as to whether or not the age of majority law is being violated. Some areas where the committee recommended the removal of the Michigan statute are:

1. Would go directly to the student, and not to the student's parents.
2. Restrictions should be eliminated. The restrictions needed, for example, to prevent students from returning to a normal college after entering medical school are adequate.
3. Current financial and procedu- res should be changed in such a way as to reasonably reflect the financial condition of the individual. Even though some of these restrictions might remain, most of these are legal and can be changed.

It is the recommendation of the Committee that a new system of categorizing students should have the advantage of knowledge and guidance of knowledgeable academic counseling, directing all phases of his or her education. The high school level would be most affected because of this recommendation, so this is the area that is most concerned.

In May of 1970, I was fed up with certain things, as I joined the US Navy. In boot camp I made a lot of friends (a group of about 200 guys), but I think I had planned on surprising him. I was still a student at Michigan when I joined and I was at the University of New York. As a result I was sitting in his class and I had planned on surprising him. I was still a student at Michigan when I joined and I was at the University of New York.
MORE ON MARIJUANA

CPSI - A civil suit challenging the constitutionality of the nation's mari- jjuana law was filed October 10 in Federal Court in Washington, D.C. Brought by the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML), a Washington-based nonprofit public interest group, the suit will be argued by former U.S. Attorney General Robert Clark, a member of NORML's Advisory Board.

The suit is being filed in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia to challenge the constitutionality of the current federal marijuana laws. The suit alleges that the laws violate the First Amendment right to free speech and the Fifth Amendment right to due process.

The suit is the latest in a series of challenges to the federal marijuana laws, which are among the most restrictive in the world. The lawsuit was filed by Frank von der Fecht, a lawyer for NORML, and Larry Klayman, a former Justice Department official who is now a private investigator.

The suit seeks to strike down the federal marijuana laws as unconstitutional. The suit also seeks to have the federal government recognize marijuana as a legal drug.

The suit is the latest in a series of challenges to the federal marijuana laws, which are among the most restrictive in the world. The lawsuit was filed by Frank von der Fecht, a lawyer for NORML, and Larry Klayman, a former Justice Department official who is now a private investigator.

The suit seeks to strike down the federal marijuana laws as unconstitutional. The suit also seeks to have the federal government recognize marijuana as a legal drug.

The suit is the latest in a series of challenges to the federal marijuana laws, which are among the most restrictive in the world. The lawsuit was filed by Frank von der Fecht, a lawyer for NORML, and Larry Klayman, a former Justice Department official who is now a private investigator.

The suit seeks to strike down the federal marijuana laws as unconstitutional. The suit also seeks to have the federal government recognize marijuana as a legal drug.

The suit is the latest in a series of challenges to the federal marijuana laws, which are among the most restrictive in the world. The lawsuit was filed by Frank von der Fecht, a lawyer for NORML, and Larry Klayman, a former Justice Department official who is now a private investigator.

The suit seeks to strike down the federal marijuana laws as unconstitutional. The suit also seeks to have the federal government recognize marijuana as a legal drug.

The suit is the latest in a series of challenges to the federal marijuana laws, which are among the most restrictive in the world. The lawsuit was filed by Frank von der Fecht, a lawyer for NORML, and Larry Klayman, a former Justice Department official who is now a private investigator.

The suit seeks to strike down the federal marijuana laws as unconstitutional. The suit also seeks to have the federal government recognize marijuana as a legal drug.

The suit is the latest in a series of challenges to the federal marijuana laws, which are among the most restrictive in the world. The lawsuit was filed by Frank von der Fecht, a lawyer for NORML, and Larry Klayman, a former Justice Department official who is now a private investigator.

The suit seeks to strike down the federal marijuana laws as unconstitutional. The suit also seeks to have the federal government recognize marijuana as a legal drug.

The suit is the latest in a series of challenges to the federal marijuana laws, which are among the most restrictive in the world. The lawsuit was filed by Frank von der Fecht, a lawyer for NORML, and Larry Klayman, a former Justice Department official who is now a private investigator.

The suit seeks to strike down the federal marijuana laws as unconstitutional. The suit also seeks to have the federal government recognize marijuana as a legal drug.

The suit is the latest in a series of challenges to the federal marijuana laws, which are among the most restrictive in the world. The lawsuit was filed by Frank von der Fecht, a lawyer for NORML, and Larry Klayman, a former Justice Department official who is now a private investigator.

The suit seeks to strike down the federal marijuana laws as unconstitutional. The suit also seeks to have the federal government recognize marijuana as a legal drug.

The suit is the latest in a series of challenges to the federal marijuana laws, which are among the most restrictive in the world. The lawsuit was filed by Frank von der Fecht, a lawyer for NORML, and Larry Klayman, a former Justice Department official who is now a private investigator.

The suit seeks to strike down the federal marijuana laws as unconstitutional. The suit also seeks to have the federal government recognize marijuana as a legal drug.

The suit is the latest in a series of challenges to the federal marijuana laws, which are among the most restrictive in the world. The lawsuit was filed by Frank von der Fecht, a lawyer for NORML, and Larry Klayman, a former Justice Department official who is now a private investigator.

The suit seeks to strike down the federal marijuana laws as unconstitutional. The suit also seeks to have the federal government recognize marijuana as a legal drug.

The suit is the latest in a series of challenges to the federal marijuana laws, which are among the most restrictive in the world. The lawsuit was filed by Frank von der Fecht, a lawyer for NORML, and Larry Klayman, a former Justice Department official who is now a private investigator.

The suit seeks to strike down the federal marijuana laws as unconstitutional. The suit also seeks to have the federal government recognize marijuana as a legal drug.
Elections Invalid?

by John Gehr

(CNP) — "The Committee to Set Aside the 1972 Election, with the help of the National Lawyer's Guild (NLG) is currently coordinating efforts in preparation for a lawsuit preparing to invalidate the 1972 Presidential Election. The period to file the suit is coming to an end at the end of the winter session with the NLG to prepare a "People's Lawsuit" to Set Aside the 1972 Election."

The proposed lawsuit alleges that due to "a massive number of unregistered and unlawful acts," the election is "invalid," and seeks to "Nullification of our right to cast an effective vote," and seeks "election reform, "free from fraud, criminal deception and purchase." These named in the suit include Nixon, Agnew, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Dean, Mitchell, Rusk, Kissinger, McGovern, Lyndon, Bush, Helms, Gray, the planners and lawyers, the Committee to Re-elect the President, and a host of other familiar names in the news.

The current complaint draft cites "blind" and "false" to fraudulent or otherwise illegal activities engaged in by the defendants. These activities include fund-raising, political sabotage, procurement and use of political intelligence, political movement of federal agencies, political participation through the cover-up of the original cover-up. The suit will request a new election be ordered because these activities should invalidate the 1972 election.

The government also the action to be a "people's lawsuit," in that the committee will try and get as many individuals as possible to act as plaintiffs. Plaintiffs will fill out a number of categories in the suit, as to make the class action as strong as possible. The plaintiffs are expected to consist of persons eligible to vote in the 1972 election, persons eligible to vote who were not registered, persons who were registered, persons who were not registered, persons who were registered and qualified to vote but did not, persons who voted for candidates other than Nixon and Agnew, persons who did not vote in the election, persons who voted for Nixon and Agnew. Other categories would include organizations, Presidential Electors, and members of the House and Senate. The lawsuit is only the beginning, according to Benenson. The lawsuit is only the beginning, according to Benenson. The lawsuit is only the beginning, according to Benenson. The lawsuit is only the beginning, according to Benenson. Therefore, all subsequent action taken by Nixon and his administration would be considered as "null and void. It is the aspect of the situation that Benenson feels will stimulate groups and people across the nation to organize into a movement to overturn the election. "The suit is something around which the people will rally," he adds. The suit is something around which the people will rally. The suit is something around which the people will rally. The suit is something around which the people will rally. The suit is something around which the people will rally."

Take an economy trip with the new SX-424

SPENCER 30-YEAR AM-FM Stereo Receiver

ONLY '199'!

KURTZ Music & Sound
257 E. Front St.
Traverse City
(906) 429-3238

Jefflamb Fine Ribbed Turtle

Feather light rib pullover in luxuriously soft and cozy 100% fine gauge lambswool. Generously tailored for comfortable fit. All this lux-URY is machine washable. In riper colors...

$16.00

OLD TOWN

SOUND SHOP

we have the largest and best

delection of Rock & Jazz Records & Tapes In Traverse.
Open 9-9 Mon. - Sat.
406 S. Union
This is a continuation of the previous story about the dog.

...and finally managed to get the woman out of the window. Without further trouble, she shut the window and dropped the three keys with which she had it pretty much together. So we set for the rest of the way, well, what can one say.

Like many girls she smokes, or at least attempts to. One afternoon she decided to give up and try to stop. She figured she'd been doing it for the past two years. One day she decided to just get it over with. She decided to pack up some bags and head down to the Student Center. A sign on the machine said, ‘clearly in bold letters OUT OF ORDER. However, being a girl, she put her mind to it and was determined to stop. She had been thinking about it for a while. She couldn't do it. She decided to quit. She had been smoking for a long time, through, for she then went over to the girl dorm and got a pack there.

After coming back she sat down and began to smell the pack. Her first pick up was some dishes2 and tried to open the pack, but she decided to do the same thing. Well, not exactly the same thing. You see, when she did it she reached for the pack. But she didn't let a few and she let a few. She didn't let her mind go to it. She went back and took her hand and she went in the pack to open it. She said, ‘I can't let my good out of opening new packages. The kids really had it together. The pack was already open. I opened it back to her. Her hand was just to it. She didn't let it. She went around to some dishes2 and let it go, and she was pretty good at that. She was pretty good at that.

She went through the whole pack, and she was getting her tongue to it. She didn't let her tongue to it. She didn't let her.[3]

What Really Happened to mad dog

One clearly afternoons I got to the phone and got it. The mad dog wasn't at the office. She had been in the office. She had been in the office.

We shouldn't happen to a dog. 'If I did, the guns were worse than my predicament, as I attempted to turn over and over, because of my leaps being held aloft. I was unable to do the dog. The white dogs were in a white dog. The mad dog had thrown himself in and whipped the gun and let me have something to be desired. Thanks. The guy that had something to be desired. We shouldn't happen to a dog. It only happened.

Lady Crazy.

Circle K sponsors Kidney Drive

Circle K is sponsoring Kidney Drive, held in collaboration with the 27th Floor in Traverse City area. Circle K has a goal of 2,000 donations. Nationwide, 150 million potential donors are needed for kidney patients suffering from renal or heart disease. Each donation is potentially life-saving. Donations must be obtained from persons recently deceased, and in Michigan, one out of every five deaths are caused by kidney disease.

There are three kidney drives held throughout the state: one in Traverse City, Saginaw, and Detroit. Kidney drives are held in Traverse City.

Finger Lakes & Circle K are currently considering a partnership to further promote kidney drives.

Identity Crisis

PCP — Entertainment is a nice thing. It's just a certain perspective on life. With what should have been thought in mind, a mind trip inspired.

Pachakort is sitting at a table with other people, a woman at his side.

Pachakort: I'm not a dog. I'm a very doing dog sitting staged on stage wearing a sign that read, "I'm not Waldorf's dog." Also, Mr. Bortini has been syndicated, and was not mentioned.

It's people like the sight and starting to see, to go get them. To keep them in the sale.

Listen to the Kinney Drive.
MAKE MONEY, STOP POLLUTION

by Linda Becker

SEP 7 - "You shall not be lawful to... "throw, discharge, deposit, or cause, suffer or procure to be thrown, discharged or deposited either from or out of any vessel, harbor, manufacturing establishment or mill, or any other kind, or refuse matter of any kind... into any navigable water..."Every person at or every corporation that shall violate this... shall be liable..."

"...or any other unlawful matter..."

The Refuse Act of 1856.

What better way to save the environment, your neighbors, and Yourself? Is your waste disorderly? Does it illegally dump poisons to your septic, ruin the great industrial pollutants, and bring them to justice?

The Refuse Act of 1856 is the oft-mentioned 1856 law that gives the federal government the power to control waste in the nation's waters. The act is based on the idea that waste in navigable waters is a public nuisance and that the federal government has the power to prevent and punish the discharge of waste into navigable waters. The act specifically prohibits the discharge of any refuse material into navigable waters, except as authorized by a permit issued by the Secretary of the Navy.

The act has been amended several times since its enactment, and it has been used to address a variety of pollution issues, including the discharge of hazardous substances, oil spills, and sewage.

The act provides for civil and criminal penalties for violations, and it establishes a framework for the regulation of waste discharge into navigable waters.

The act is a cornerstone of federal environmental law and is still used today to address a wide range of pollution issues. The act is a powerful tool that can be used to protect our nation's waters and to hold those who pollute accountable.

Watergate

Court Offered

Buffalo, NY (AP) - An experimental court entitled "Perspectives on Watergate" is being offered by the Political Science department at the State University of New York, (SUNY) Buffalo, this term. The course has been limited to 20 students, each of whom will have the opportunity to participate in the trial of a "mock" watergate scandal, given by a faculty member with expertise in the topic area.

Due to the class size, the course grade will depend on the mid-term and final. Each lecturer will contribute a number of themes based on their topic in the mock trial.

NATIONAL BANK & TRUST

Banking With Us Is Easy--
Just Across the Street--

At Munson & Cochlin

We Have Your Best Interest at Heart
Sports Shorts

The Nick Radosvich Physical Education Center will be open on Saturdays for use by all NACC students. The hours will be from 12:00 noon to 6:00 pm.

A student supervisor is in charge, taking it in Wing Year, and his photo appears in the front of the DI Handbook.

***

Speaking of the DI Handbook, if you can get into sports at all, this book has information on just about every sport there is. Give it a look.

***

Mid-Michigan College has invited the students of NACC to an intramural playoff this coming November 7, from 8:00 to 11:00 at their Student Union. This also includes a dance. A few things offered are:
- Singles: doubles
- Doubles: singles and doubles
- Chess: 3 players per school

The deadline for individual meets is October 20. Letters and or for and about registration and the game themselves will be in the mail on October 20. Contact Mr. Ingles at ext. 216.

***

All people interested in a power weight lifting team can contact Mr. Ben-dark at ext. 214 or Mr. Ben-dark at ext. 214.

Rick Green.

Workouts are everyday in the Nick Radosvich Physical Education Center.

Cross Country

Sturtevans Brian Alco and Marvin Burosz finished second to pace Lake Superior State College's cross country team Lakers to a double dual win over Michigan Tech University and Northwestern Michigan College here Saturday.

Alco, who finished at 25:35, Michigan Tech’s distant second place, ran the event in 20:15 to set the stage for a large field of entries. Burosz, just behind him in 25:45, also finished second behind Alco to capture the second place finish for the Lakers.

Michigan Tech runners were third, fourth and fifth respectively, under the guidance of Lake Superior State College Coach Brian Alco.

Ed Flores and Dave Henn of the Lakers were sixth and seventh, respectively, with times of 27:25 and 27:41, while Steve Overmyer of Michigan Tech ran eighth in 28:00.

The meet’s individual results saw the Lakers defeat Northwestern 15-50 and Michigan Tech 25-35.

The dual victory was the third straight for coach Joe Palmer’s Lakers who return to action today with a home meet against Northwood Institute.

Traverse City State Bank

WE'RE MAKING BANKING EASIER!